

Redistricting places Carroll in new senatorial district

By PHYLLIS McLAUGHLIN
The News-Democrat

Carroll and Henry counties are no longer part of the state's 26th Senate district. Those counties, which, historically, have been served by Republican Sen. Ernie Harris, now fall into the 20th District, represented by Sen. Paul Hornback, also a Republican.

Population growth statewide, as documented by the 2010 U.S. census, means districts for both the state House of Representatives and Senate were redrawn, approved and signed into law by Gov. Steve Beshear last week. Lawmakers are still working to redraw the six districts for the U.S. House of Representatives.

The state population rose from 4.04 million to 4.34 million, with most of the growth falling in the central region between Interstates 65 and 75, Harris said.

Redistricting for the Senate means taking the state's total population and dividing it by 38 – the number of senatorial districts – to determine how many constituents each senator must represent. The optimal number this time around was 114,194, but lawmakers are given a window of plus or minus 5 percent.

Kentucky's Constitution mandates that only counties with a population higher than the optimal number can be split between districts – those are Jefferson, Fayette, Campbell and Boone counties, Harris said.

Because of growth in Oldham County, Henry and Carroll counties were carved from Harris' district, which now only includes Trimble and Oldham counties and the northeast section of Jefferson County, specifically the Prospect area.

Hornback's district previously included Bullitt, Shelby and Spencer counties. With the redistricting, the 20th District loses Bullitt but gains Gallatin and a portion of Boone County, along with Henry and Carroll.

"He's top-notch," Harris said of Hornback, adding that the senator has something in common with the two largely rural counties: "He's a farmer; he identifies with that particular industry. ... "As for my friends in

Study finds Champions successful in first year

Champions for a Drug Free Carroll County performed well in year one of their five-year Drug Free Communities federal grant. DFC is a collaborative initiative sponsored by the Office of National Drug Control Policy and the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

Champions contracted with REACH of Louisville, Inc. in February 2011 to evaluate their progress in achieving their objectives; to identify successful practices and promote their sustainability; and to provide recommendations. The report also provided results from the Kentucky Incentives for Prevention survey, taken by Carroll County Schools students in sixth, eighth, 10th and 12th grades, and the Coalition Cohesiveness Survey, taken by 17 anonymous coalition members.

Champions for a Drug Free Carroll County formed in 2006 by a group of concerned citizens that saw the need to address the growing substance abuse problems in the county.

During the first year of the DFC grant, the coalition focused on the following objectives:

- Expand youth involvement in the coalition;
- Coordinate with other community groups and organizations with similar goals;
- Expand coalition membership and outreach;
- Influence local ordinances, state statutes and national laws affecting youth alcohol, tobacco and prescription drug use;
- Provide community education that will limit youth access to prescription drugs;
- Use communication strategies to change the culture and context within which decisions about substance use are made in Carroll County;
- Build a positive support network of caring adults for the youth of Carroll County;
- Increase the opportunities for youth to engage in constructive use of time;
- Implement school-based drug abuse prevention programs; and
- Evaluate coalition strategies and make changes accordingly.

Facility offers new health care options

The doors opened on Carroll County's first urgent care center Friday afternoon.

Kentucky Urgent Care treated several patients in its first few hours at the new two-story medical complex located at 329 Floyd Dr., just across from Kroger.

The downstairs of the new building is divided into two offices — Kentucky Urgent Care and DaVita General Butler Dialysis, according to Dr. Mark Miller.

The upstairs, which is still under construction, will have three office spaces — one of which has been spoken for at this time. These office spaces are 3,800 square feet, 2,300 square feet and 2,100 square feet.

Miller said the office and its staff "have gotten a warm welcome from everybody around here." He said the folks at Kroger even sent the staff a welcome basket filled with goodies.

The urgent care center's opening is the first of two in the building set for this month.

The new DaVita General Butler Dialysis opens its doors to patients Jan. 30, DaVita's Samantha Dobbs said Tuesday.

The dialysis center will open in stages by first taking two patients, she explained, in accordance with state regulations.

JEFF MOORE/The News-Democrat

Dobbs said once they begin treatment, the state then returns to re-certify the center. This process may take a couple of weeks before more patients can begin their treatment in Carrollton, she explained.

Miller said he knows there were some 15 patients lined up as of last week looking to begin taking dialysis here locally instead of traveling to Northern Kentucky or Louisville for the treatments three times a week.

Dobbs said anyone interested in transferring their dialysis to DaVita can call (502) 732-4713 and they will link up patients with the company's intake coordinator. The office is currently open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., she said. Those hours will expand as the center opens and begins offering services, she said.

REVVING UP FOR RACE FEST

Organizers look to expand second event

By KRISTIN SHERRARD
The News-Democrat

Plans for the second annual Race Fest event leading up to the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Quaker State 400 at the Kentucky Speedway are beginning to take shape.

Committee members met Wednesday, Jan. 18 at Down on Main to discuss what they would like to see at this year's local event, set for Wednesday, June 27. Race weekend will begin with the NASCAR Camping World Truck Series UNOH 225 on Thursday, June 28, followed by the NASCAR Nationwide Series Feed The Children 300 on Friday and culminating in the main event Saturday.

Co-facilitator and Kroger manager John Royse started out the meeting by asking what committee members liked about last year's event and how they can improve.

"I think the downtown event itself was a huge success," co-facilitator Mark Smith, State Farm Insurance, said. He suggested building momentum for the local event off of the first race of the weekend, the NASCAR Camping World Truck Series UNOH 225 race.

Smith also said he has made contact with Bass Pro requesting the business consider holding an event or exhibition on the riverfront during Race Week. He said he has not heard anything back as of the meeting.

Rhonda Welch, co-owner of Down on Main, said she believes people enjoyed being able to travel from space to space and looking at everything. Last year, a motorcycle show was held at the west end of Main Street across

Incumbents file papers for the May 22 primary

By JEFF MOORE
The News-Democrat

Local voters will not only have their chance to choose candidates to run for president this May, they also will be selecting candidates to run for circuit court clerk and commonwealth attorney in Carroll County.

Carroll County Clerk Alice Marsh said Monday that other races up for grabs this year in the state include the 4th Congressional District seat now held by Geoff Davis, who is retiring from office. Additionally, Rep. Rick Rand's 47th District state House of Representatives seat is up for election this year.

The deadline to file paperwork to seek office is Jan. 31 at 4 p.m. for the upcoming May 22 primary, Marsh said.

The only race that files paperwork with Marsh's office will be the race for circuit court clerk.

Others file their materials with Kentucky Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes

Marsh said incumbent Democrat Laman Stark, the only person who has qualified to be on the ballot this year, has filed his paperwork. She explained that anyone wanting to seek this office has to pass a state test and that the list she received states only Stark can be on the ballot.

"I am seeking a third term for two reasons," Stark said in a news release. "I thoroughly enjoy serving my fellow citizens. Also, I have the determination and vision to assist the courts as they move to electronic filing."

Incumbent Democrat James M. Crawford has filed to seek reelection as commonwealth attorney in Kentucky's 15th Judicial District, which covers Carroll, Owen and Grant counties. State

Medical

The new medical facility will not only offer convenience to those requiring dialysis, but through urgent care, to anyone needing treatment for non-life threatening conditions. Kentucky Urgent Care offers area residents an alternative to visiting the hospital emergency room when it is not an actual emergency.

Miller said he has heard that some people might be confused about the type of care provided at an urgent care center. He said some people believe the exact opposite about the treatment provided.

"Urgent care is specifically designed for people who do not need to be in the emergency room," he said. This would be for things when they cannot get in to see their primary care doctor. Urgent care helps to fill that void so they do not have to go to the ER.

Miller used examples such as strep throat, colds, bronchitis, lacerations and things like a broken arm.

Urgent care centers do not require an appointment. Miller said his operation welcomes walk-ins seven days a week between noon and 8 p.m.

Urgent care also proves to be less expensive than going to the ER. He said the average co-pay for visiting an urgent care is between $50 and $75, while the initial expense for the ER is $150 and the patient's cost can easily run anywhere from $300 to $400 for a visit.

Until Kentucky Urgent Care opened, local residents had to travel to Madison, Ind., La Grange or Northern Kentucky for urgent care.

Miller, along with Drs. Samer Hussein, Ranjhan Gopang — partners in the corporation that opened the new facility — decided to open the urgent care because of the local need for low-cost and convenient health care that is now available nationwide.

Miller said in a previous interview that people now gravitate toward this type of care because, with the economy the way it is, people are reluctant to miss work or school and, therefore, prefer to seek health care after-hours or on weekends.

"The old model of calling up your primary care doctor and trying to get an appointment three days from now is done," Miller said. "They want to have care when they want it, when they need it and want it to be good quality and affordable. That's all the kinds of things that urgent care brings."

Kentucky Urgent Care has seven doctors who are on the rotation to work at the facility, with Miller on hand four days a week. Two other doctors have agreed to assist when someone needs to be off or is sick.

Urgent care has hired six people and will still need to fill a few more positions, both part-time and full-time in the near future.

Local residents can contact the urgent care office at (502) 732-1089.

Initially, two patients will receive treatment and the center will then go through required state recertification in preparation to serve more patients. This suite appears to have an open floorplan with a central station in the middle. Right: The dialysis center entrance is to the right from the urgent care center's entrance.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Council authorizes $1,500 to advertise community meeting Feb. 16

By a vote of 5-0 Monday night, Carrollton City Council approved spending up to $1,500 on print and radio advertising for the upcoming community listening session on riverfront development and the future of downtown. Councilman Larry Morgan was not present.

The meeting will be held on Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. at the Carroll County Middle School cafeteria. Main Street Manager Sam Burgess presented council with the advertising rates for The News-Democrat and K95.9 Froggy Radio. He also wrote a letter of invitation and asked council to send it to 25 people. He said it was very important to have a good turnout at the meeting in order to get input from the community on the future direction of downtown.

Two handicap spots added to Main Street

Carrollton City Council approved designating two handicap spots on Fifth Street in front of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at its meeting Monday.

Councilman Mike Gordon said he and Public Works Supervisor Ronnie Knight checked the grade on the hill at Fifth Street. Gordon said the American Disabilities Act does not have a rule on the set grade for parking spots, but it does for ramps. He said they used that standard to determine whether or not they could designate handicap accessible parking there, and it exceeded the requirements.

There will be two pull-in spots, and Gordon said public works is planning on pressure washing and striping the lines once the weather improves. Until then, he suggested asking property owner Jim McNeal about putting signs up on the railing in front of the church designating the spots.

"It would benefit not only the church but also the restaurants down there," Gordon said. He said the church understands they are not guaranteed those spots.

DRB ordinance amended

The ordinance referencing Design and Review Board members has been updated to fit its current use. City Attorney Nick Marsh brought to the attention of city council Monday night that ordinance 153.05 states of the five voting members on the board, city council, planning and zoning and Carroll County Community Development Corporation must all be represented. A property owner or merchant in the Carrollton Commercial District must fill the other two member-at-large spots.

Marsh said the ordinance is currently not being followed. The ordinance also does not specify the members must live in Carrollton.

Mayor Gene McMurry and council agreed that it is hard enough to get citizens to volunteer for the city boards without additional restrictions or forcing them to serve on more than one. As a result, council decided to have a five-member board made up of at-large citizens. The Main Street manager and a member of city council also will sit on the board as ex-officio members.

The agenda for Monday's city council meeting listed a number of people whose terms had expired or were expiring soon on the city boards. McMurry said he had only heard back from a couple of people, but would continue to attempt to contact them. He also asked council to brainstorm names of other people they think would be interested in serving.

Malcolm Carraco was re-appointed to Planning and Zoning and Sam Burgess was re-appointed to Board of Adjustments, both terms ending Dec. 31, 2015.

City approves contracts with two electrical inspectors

Carrollton City Council passed two resolutions Monday night regarding city electrical inspectors that will work with Code Enforcement Officer Art Zook. Resolution 2012-01 and 2012-02 authorizing the mayor to enter into contracts with Steve Helmer and Jim Daugherty, respectively, passed 5-0. The non-exclusive contracts are for certified electrical inspector services.

Redistricting makes Hornback county's new state senator

Hello. My name is Paul Hornback and I am your new state senator.

It is our constitutional duty every 10 years to realign our voting districts according to population after each census. This act fulfills the requirement of one man, one vote. Because of population shifts, the 20th State Senatorial District now includes Carroll County in addition to part of Boone and Jefferson counties and all of Gallatin, Henry, Shelby and Spencer counties. (The final congressional district lines are still being discussed between the chambers.)

I look forward to sharing updates from Frankfort discussing the important issues being debated and voted on.

Before I dive into issues, however, I wanted to tell you a little bit about me. I was elected to the Kentucky Senate in 2010. I currently serve as co-chair of the Tobacco Settlement Agreement Fund oversight Committee. I was also appointed to the Senate Appropriation and Revenue Committee; Agriculture Committee; Transportation Committee; Licensing, Occupation, and Administrative Regulations Committee; Capital Planning Advisory Board; and Government Contract Review Committee. I reside in Shelbyville and am the father of two daughters, Stephanie (Ray) and Amanda (Matt).

On Tuesday, Gov. Steve Beshear gave his Budget Address outlining his priorities for Kentucky's budget.

As I have been warning, we have close to a billion dollar shortfall, $742 million to be exact over the biennium. I was glad to see that the governor took a more realistic approach to the budget this time and didn't use phantom gambling proceeds to fund programs. He also proposed cutting certain agencies by 8.4 percent. However, the governor then proposed about $800 million of additional spending.

He is funding new programs and initiatives while applying severe cuts to other parts of government. This does not make sense to many of us in the Senate.

The House of Representatives has assigned the budget proposal to their budget subcommittees. When they have finished putting their mark on the document and the House passes the bill, the Senate will then have our turn at reviewing and revising the proposal. I will keep you updated on that process.

We are in a 60-day legislative session so there is still plenty of time to let me know what topics interest you.

The heavy workload of social workers and how to curb meth laboratories were just two of the topics that committees focused on this week.

These and other discussions and debates will continue in the weeks ahead.

12U team thanks parents, sponsors for their support

Editor:

The Mustangs are a 12 and under travel Little League Baseball team. They played in 16 tournaments this season covering 61 games. They made it to the championship game 11 out of 16 times, winning three tournaments and runner up eight times.

The core players were Jaydon Berry, Andrew Emberton, Nicholas Riggins from Henry County; Adam Young and Seth Hicks from Trimble County; Evan McMahan from Carroll County; Kyle Kaelin and Jett Kincer from Oldham County and Cody Tindle from Spencer County, Blake Prather and Chris Seng. The head coach was Randy Berry and assistant coaches were George Ritchie, Tim Young, Jeff Shea and Ricky McMahan.

The team would like to thank the parents for all of their time and support during the season, the players for their hard work and willingness to learn and grow, and all of their sponsors. Without all of them this would not have been possible. The team would like to give a special thanks to the following: Earl Floyd Ford, Bonnie Williams of Remax, Randy Berry Inc., Hampton Inn Express, South Run Mechanics, Halcomb Electric, Billy Bob Coomes, Tony Whaley, William Karem, Mike Mefford of Muffler Pro, Baughman Building Materials, Roy Ferguson and Bedford Loan and Deposit.

Library gathering on anniversary recounted stories from '37 flood

In 1987, the 50th anniversary of the flood, I was in my fifth year as director of the public library. During those first five years I had heard many of our patrons refer to the flood, had seen the plaque in the County's history.

So in January of 1987 the library invited everyone to come to the meeting room on a Saturday afternoon to share stories. Articles in The News-Democrat and Madison Courier brought more than 60 folks together, standing room only, for two hours or more of tales of unforgettable experiences. Unfortunately, I was not far-sighted enough to pay someone to film the speakers that afternoon; we were not quite as sophisticated with our phones or cameras back then.

I do, however, remember several of the speakers and their stories from that day and will, as accurately as I can, tell them here. Very few of those who were with us that afternoon are with us still and I hope I do justice to their memories.

Elmer Dunn, father of Jerry Dunn, told of having a store out on Locust. As the waters from the Kentucky rose nearer and nearer, he feared losing the building and its contents. With help, he wrapped logging chains around the building and then fastened the chains to trees on the hillside. As the water rose ever higher, the store lifted off its foundation but held in place, settling back on the foundation as the waters receded. I haven't been down that road in a few years, but Cookie Yocum later owned the store I believe and it was certainly still there the last time I was out that way.

Evacuations in Carroll County began on Tuesday, Jan. 19. But on Saturday, Jan. 23, Bess Bolton was still giving permanents in the Powder Puff Beauty Salon on a second floor of one of the shops on Main Street across from the courthouse. She made us all laugh as she spoke of her customer and herself climbing out the window to get in a boat "to be rescued."

Bob Shelton was born during the '37 Flood and told us of how he was always told that the doctor arrived at his mother's bedside by traveling up Fifth Street and climbing in through the second story window. (I guess everyone was pretty agile then.)

Others told of the difficulty of having to leave their homes. A number of folks lived on flat bottom boats, called shanty boats near what is now Point Park. One of the more colorful characters was reported to have said, "When the river comes up and we have to leave, we're called 'river rats.' When the folks on Highland have to evacuate, they're refugees."

And refugees there were

Slow and steady wins the race: Carroll defeats Trimble in OT

By KRISTIN SHERRARD
The News-Democrat

Carroll head coach Randy Mefford summed it up best: “It just goes to show you, anything can happen in a rivalry game.”

The Lady Panthers (5-13) bounced back from a 10-point first quarter deficit to defeat the visiting Lady Raiders 36-34 in overtime.

Trimble (6-9) had the opportunity to end the game in regulation when referees called a foul with .2 seconds remaining, sending sophomore Paige Black to the free throw line for a pair. Down one, Black missed the first and sank the second, extending the game another four minutes knotted at 34.

In overtime, both teams struggled to get anything going offensively. With 1:42 to go, Trimble sophomore Jesse Dunlap attempted to steal an entry pass and fouled Carroll senior Brittany Arvin. Arvin hit one for two at the free throw line, 35-34.

With 10.2 seconds left and coming out of a timeout, Carroll rebounded a Trimble missed shot, and the referees tagged Trimble head coach Kerrie Stewart with a technical foul for arguing a call. Sophomore Makena Kindoll stepped to the line for the Lady Panthers and hit one of two free throws with 1.3 seconds left, sealing the win.

“This is one of the strangest games I’ve ever been involved in, to be honest with you,” Mefford said. “Our kids though, I told them in the locker room I was real proud of them, they are finally catching on a bit, seems to me. They did a really good job of running the offense and trying to be a little more patient, not always just throwing up a quick shot, and that’s the way we need to try to play if we can keep from turning it over. They beat us by 24 points the second game of the season and I think we’ve improved some, I really do.”

Stewart said the game was “frustrating across the board. We didn’t execute up to our ability, I know that. We shouldn’t have been in that position. I’m not going to sit here and say I wasn’t frustrated with some of the officiating, but there again, I don’t think officiating costs us ball games. We’ve got to learn to play above that. We’ve got to hit some shots we didn’t hit, play a little better defense.”

KRISTIN SHERRARD/The News-Democrat
Head coach Randy Mefford grins and congratulates his players after they knock off rival Trimble County in overtime, 36-34 at home Thursday, Jan. 19. Trimble’s Paige Black hit 1-2 from the foul line with .2 second remaining to extend the game, but Carroll held on for the victory. Sophomore Makena Kindoll led the way for the Lady Panthers with 12 points.

Trimble won the first match-up in Bedford, 53-29, on Dec. 2. It was on this night that Carroll lost leading-scorer senior Hannah Devine to a season-ending knee injury.

“Carroll did a nice job of being very patient in their offense, and I commend them on their execution of the game,” Stewart said. “Coach Mefford obviously had them prepared, and they executed his game plan and did a nice job of it and hit enough shots when they had to. They’ve obviously improved, and it’s been difficult for them, I know, not having Hannah, and they’ve come a long way and my hats off to them. It was frustrating for us.”

Early on it looked like the Lady Raiders would run away with another blowout victory. Following a basket by Carroll’s Nikki Hill to open the game, Trimble senior Sarakate Long hit three-straight 3-pointers to give the Lady Raiders a 9-2 lead and force a Carroll timeout.

Hill took the reins for the Lady Panthers, playing aggressively and igniting a fire under her team. She finished the game with a solid performance across the board: nine points, eight rebounds, four assists, three steals and two blocks.

“Nikki is our do-it-all player. She handles the ball, she rebounds, she passes the ball. She’s a great teammate, a great kid overall,” Mefford said. “She had one of her better games. I don’t think I took her out. I think she played 36 minutes. She’s kind of the backbone of what we do. She takes the ball out of bounds for us, which I’ve always said you have to have your smartest kid out there doing that ... she’s done a good job for us for most of the year.”

Carroll shaved four points off of Trimble’s lead, down 22-16 at the half.

In the third, the Lady Panthers ran two straight plays to senior Brittany Arvin, who was posted up in the middle of the lane for a short jumper. A field goal by Hill cutting to the basket, capped off a 6-0 run and cut the lead to 27-23. After three quarters, it was still a four-point game, and the home team was feeling confident.

“We’ve been out of so many games at halftime, and this game, the girls felt good,” Mefford said. “They were in the ballgame at halftime, they were in the

PANTHERS BRIEFS

Carroll falls to Owen in 8th Region All-A Classic

The Panthers lost to the Rebels in the 8th Region All-A Classic on Jan. 20. Owen County went on to win the championship with a 65-58 victory over Walton-Verona to improve to a record of 14-7.

Panthers fall at home, 63-57, to KCD Monday

Carroll County lost at home Monday to Louisville’s Kentucky Country Day, 63-57.

Next up for the Panthers (7-10) is a trip to Henry County to play Eminence Saturday at 6 p.m. before the girls’ game at 7:30 p.m.

The boys’ will come home on Tuesday, Jan. 31 for a re-match with rival Trimble County. The Panthers shocked the Raiders at home with a 64-63 victory on Dec. 1 on a game-winning 3-pointer by Brandon Stewart.

KRISTIN SHERRARD/
The News-Democrat

Head coach Carroll Yager hopes to see his team turn it around against Eminence Saturday. The Panthers have lost two straight, but have not lost more than two in a row since the beginning of the season.

Carroll drops close game to Williamstown

The Lady Panthers (5-14) fought hard, but came up short at home against Williamstown (3-10) Saturday, 36-30. “Our kids really, really played hard that day, but we weren’t quite as sharp as I’d have thought we’d be,” head coach Randy Mefford said. He said both teams are comparable and have had their share of struggles this season, but he was hoping they would have come out on top.

Williamstown outscored Carroll 11-4 in the second quarter, giving them the 16-11 advantage at halftime. Both teams struggled with their shooting – Carroll 22 percent, Williamstown 27 percent – and both gave the other opportunities to pull ahead by turning the ball over. The Lady Demons committed 24 turnovers compared to 20 by the Lady Panthers.

Makena Kindoll led the team in scoring with a dozen, followed by Nikki Hill, 6; Kayla Williamson, 5; Andie Hardesty, 4; and Brittany Arvin, 3.

Healthy changes can be made to most recipes

Recently we have seen and heard a lot about Paula Deen and her diagnosis of Type II Diabetes.

People, mainly media, are so quick to criticize when we take a misstep, but remember what everyone was saying about Ms.

Deen prior to her recent admission. They were singing her praises. She does happen to have very good recipes, however, we can make changes. We all have choices in life and we can make our own choice as to how and what we eat.

Whenever you get a new recipe, you have the choice to make it exactly the way it's presented or to make a few changes to suit you and your family. For example, if a recipe calls for butter, you can make a substitution.

You can choose to use apple-sauce if it's for cookies, cake, breads, etc.

I substituted low-calorie "I Can't Believe it's not Butter" spread in place of butter/ margarine in an oatmeal cookie recipe recently. They weren't crispy cookies, but chewy and very good, plus held up well when baking.

I also use Splenda in place of sugar in many of my recipes that I make at home. You can take any recipe and make it healthier for you and your family, if you choose.

Whenever I give you a recipe, I sometimes have room to give you a few of the substitutions you can use to adjust it for your family. If I haven't given you an alternative for sugars, fats and flavorings, and more, always feel free to call me and ask. I am always happy to receive your phone calls. That's what I am here to do for you.

I don't use regular butter that much anymore. I use olive oil and canola oil in small amounts Margarita-lime pork loin can be both tasty and healthy through the use of some herbs for seasoning.

when cooking, but for special occasions I will splurge. I don't fry foods at all now, I will bake, roast or grill it. If I need to brown anything, I usually use a little canola oil spray in place of pouring the oil in the pan. I have not used corn oil in a recipe for more than 10 years; extra-virgin olive oil is my favorite.

These changes have not been difficult to do at all. By the way,

I use a lot of fresh herbs when I can, and they make such a wonderful difference.

So now, let's get down to this very special, easy dish. I give you:

Margarita-Lime Pork Loin

1 (3 lb.) pork loin
1 cup Tequila (or use chicken broth)
About 6 limes or ¾ cup lime juice
¼ cup olive oil
2 garlic cloves, minced

Place pork in bowl or plastic bag; mix remaining ingredients, pour over pork, cover and marinate in refrigerator for 2-4 hours, turning at least twice.

When ready to cook, preheat oven to 350. Take pork out of bag, being sure to strain liquid and reserve minced garlic for later use.

In small bowl, mix together the following;

1 tbsp. dried oregano
1 tbsp. dried Thyme
Zest of 2 limes
Kosher salt to taste
Reserved minced garlic

Place pork in oven-proof pan; rub seasonings all over roast. Bake at 350 and bake until internal temperature reaches 160 by using a meat thermometer, which will be about 1½-2 hours. Prior to serving, you can also squeeze a little more lime juice over the roast.

I served this with oven-roasted red potatoes, roasted broccoli, cauliflower and onions. It was a tasty and tender roast and the roasted vegetables added a wonderful touch to the meal. Enjoy!

PASTOR'S COLUMN

Just when a person thinks he's alone, God rides up on a tractor to the rescue

Years ago, we had a neighbor, Sandy, who moved into the house around the bend from ours.

She and her husband and two kids moved to Florida from New Jersey where her husband had struggled with a drug addiction — and a girlfriend.

They came to make a new start, which only lasted a few weeks. Sandy's husband decided he wasn't ready to give up his girlfriend and moved back to New Jersey.

For the next two years Sandy did her best raising two small children, working part-time and going to school. On top of the stress of her marriage and being thousands of miles away from her own family, Sandy's son had behavioral problems. Every moment was a continual emotional roller coaster for her.

She continued to hold out hope that God would restore her marriage, that her husband would get free of the drugs and leave the girlfriend. But some days she was at rock bottom.

Such was the day the divorce papers came in the mail. Just a few days before, her dog had died from a snake bite; she had a pile of bills she didn't know how she would pay; her son's behavior was getting worse, and now the man she still loved didn't love her any more.

Feeling utterly out of control, Sandy decided to mow her lawn. She later told me that it was the one thing in her world that she felt she could do.

However, her lawn mower refused to start.

Determined to do this one thing, she fiddled with the knobs for a while, but nothing happened.

That's when she snapped.

She began screaming and cursing at God, throwing herself on her overgrown lawn and wailing.

"Where are you, God?!" she demanded. "You said you would take care of me!

You said you'd be my help! I need you — where are you?!"

Have you been there? Maybe not in that same situation — your dog didn't die and your spouse hasn't left. But if you're human, then you either have reached or will one day reach a point of utter helplessness and desperation when it seems as if God is cruelly withholding his help.

A few weeks ago I prayed with a woman who was overwhelmed with family problems — sickness and waywardness and serious drug addiction. Plus, her neck hurt.

As she cried, I hugged her and just said, "Oh, Jesus," because there really were no other words.

I told her what I always tell people and tell myself when things look so utterly bleak. "When you cry out, 'God, where are you?! Why won't you do something?'" Maybe God's answer is: 'I'm right here, and I am doing something that you can't see — and I'm not done doing it.'"

I think the woman felt better. I hope she did. God isn't cruel, even if it looks like it sometimes.

Back to Sandy. As she lay crying on her grass, an old guy on a tractor lawn mower rounded the bend and stopped to ask if she needed help.

Wiping her drippy nose with her dirty arm, all Sandy could do was nod.

The man got her lawn mower started, then sent her inside to take a shower and he mowed her grass for her.

Later, when Sandy told me about it, I told her that the old guy was God — God coming to her aid, disguised as an old man riding a tractor lawn mower.

I love that story. It was a turning point for Sandy, although her circumstances didn't change right away. She still got divorced and her son still had behavior problems. She still had trouble paying her bills and she still lived far from her mother and sisters in New Jersey.

Eventually, Sandy remarried and moved away, and I haven't seen her in more than 10 years.

But I still remember her and her utter desperation and the day God rode around the bend on a tractor lawn mower to rescue her.

Not changing her circumstances, but changing her perspective, strengthening her faith and increasing her hope.

I wouldn't be surprised if he doesn't do that for you, too.

JCTC program assists with completing financial aid forms

It's not too early to begin preparing for the fall semester. If applying for financial aid, the priority deadline for college financial aid is fast approaching and students needing aid for the fall 2012 or spring 2013 semesters should begin the application process now.

Jefferson Community and Technical College will hold free workshops to help.

The first step is to complete the FAFSA — Free Application for Federal Student Aid. At Jefferson Community and Technical College, the FAFSA begins the process for determining all forms of federal, state and local financial aid. The priority deadline to submit the FAFSA is March 15.

The FAFSA can be completed online at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

However, students and parents may attend one of the three workshops at the JCTC Carrollton Campus, 324 Main St., to receive help completing the application.

The workshops are scheduled for Feb. 15, March 15 and April 18. All workshops will be held in room 112 from 3-5:30 p.m. The workshops are open to everyone, even those who do not plan to attend JCTC.

Students and parents

(if the student is under 23, unmarried and has no children) will need to bring the following information:

- Completed 2011 taxes for student and parent (if applicable)
- Driver's license, Social Security numbers, records of untaxed income (Social Security, welfare, etc)
- Current balances of savings and checking accounts
- FAFSA PIN number (this can be obtained at www.pin.ed.gov).

The FAFSA asks for information about income, assets and expenses. If the student is considered dependent under federal guidelines, both the student and parents must provide financial information. Nearly all students going directly to college from high school will be considered dependent.

A formula set by Congress is used to determine a student's eligibility for federal and state aid.

To receive financial aid, recipients must meet all general eligibility requirements must:

- Be a degree seeking student in an eligible program
- Meet satisfactory academic progress requirements
- Meet enrollment status requirements
- Resolve problems identified on the Student Aid Report (The SAR is generated following completion of the FAFSA and sent to the applicant.)
- Have a high school diploma or equivalent; pass an approved ability-to-benefit test or have been home schooled.

The Kentucky Higher

Education Assistance Authority suggests that all "students submit the FAFSA even if they don't think they qualify for aid." More students qualify for aid than many think. In addition, many colleges, including JCTC, use FAFSA to determine scholarship eligibility.

Students who are uncertain where they will attend college can have FAFSA information sent to numerous colleges by including each college's code number in the application. The code numbers can be obtained by visiting a college's website or contacting the financial aid office.

Dean's list

JCTC would like to announce the dean's list for the fall 2011 semester. Students must maintain full time status and a cumulative GPA of 3.5 or higher to be included: Casey Banta, Erin Calhoun, Roy Canine, Felicia Carter, Jerrika Chaffins, Marvin Clark, Christopher Creighton, Angela Duncan, Carl Fitzgerald, Jay Fox, Staci McArter, Jonathon Nelson, Stephanie O'Brien, Chris Phillips, Donald Poe II, Jordan Reardon, Cranston Robbins, Joshua Satchwell, Craig Sullivan, William Tackett and Billy Walker.

Apply now

Students interested in enrolling for the Summer or Fall 2012 semester can apply now at Jefferson.kctcs.edu.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Sign up begins for EQUIP, Hoop, Houses On-Farm Energy initiatives

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service has announced that the first of three ranking period cut-off dates for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program Organic, High Tunnel (Hoop Houses) and On-Farm Energy Initiatives is Feb. 3.

Farm Focus

Christin Herbst

Producers interested in any of these three programs should submit applications to their local NRCS office by the deadline so that their applications can be considered during the first ranking period of 2012.

The organic initiative will focus on individuals who are currently certified organic or are transitioning to become certified organic. NRCS provides assistance to eligible producers for installation of conservation practices on agricultural operations related to organic production.

The Season High Tunnel (Hoop House) Initiative will assist producers to extend the growing season for high value crops in an environmentally safe manner. This initiative will also assist in improving plant quality, soil quality, air quality, reducing nutrient and pesticide transport, along with reducing energy use as well.

The On-Farm Energy Initiative will be used to specifically address energy conservation through practice implementation and for development of energy conservation plans.

Local NRCS offices will accept applications on a continuous basis. The first ranking period cut-off date as mentioned is Feb. 3. The second cut-off ranking date is March 30, with the third cut-off date being June 1.

For more information, visit the NRCS website www.nrcs.usda.gov/wps/

2012 DCP/ACRE Programs

USDA Kentucky Farm Service Agency State Executive Director John W. McCauley reminds producer's enrollment for Average Crop Revenue Election Program or the traditional Direct and Counter-cyclical Program began Jan. 23 and runs through June 1.

"Farmers in Kentucky who are interested in enrolling in these programs need to add this important deadline to their list of 'must do' jobs," McCauley said.

"Producers should contact the local county office to set up appointments."

Annual contracts are required to be signed to receive program benefits. All signatures of producers receiving a share in DCP and ACRE payments are required by June 1.

For more information about DCP and ACRE programs or other FSA programs, contact the Carroll County FSA Office at (502) 732-6931 or visit the state FSA website at www.fsa.usda.gov/ky.

Homebased microprocessor workshop for home producers

I am coordinating a state home-based microprocessor videoconference workshop on Tuesday, March 27 from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. here at the Carroll County Extension office.

Family Focus

Pre-registration is required. House Bill 391 and Farmers Market legislation allows Kentucky farmers who grow and harvest produce to process value-added products and sell them from designated farmers markets, certified roadside stands and the processor's farm.

There are two processing categories in HB 391, homebased processors and homebased microprocessors.

Homebased processors may sell jams, jellies, breads, fruit pies, cakes and cookies after they register with the Cabinet for Health Services and complete an application form.

Homebased microprocessors may sell acid, acidified and low acid foods. Farmers and home producers planning to sell their products must attend an HBM workshop and have their recipes approved. HBM workshops are $50.

Farmers must attend the entire HBM workshop and pass both exams to complete the workshop as established by HB 391 regulations.

Recipes must also be approved by a designated representative of the University of Kentucky, at a fee of $5 for each recipe. Once homebased microprocessor certification is received, it is up to the processor to follow recommended, safe canning procedures before the sale of their value-added products.

Registration and additional information about the training is available at www.ca.uky.edu/agcomm/micro/.

If you cannot attend the training in Carroll County, other dates and locations are listed on the website. You may register online, by email at debbie.clouthier@uky.edu, or by calling (859) 257-1812.

If you have any questions please feel free to contact me.

Green hour

The National Wildlife Federation has a new campaign "Be Out There" that encourages families to devote one hour each day to unstructured outdoor play.

During the winter months it is good to try to get outdoors, get some fresh air and activity.

Too many of our Kentucky residents think it's too cold to get outdoors.

But, when the days are not blustery or in the middle of a blizzard, there is no reason to not go outdoors for a nice walk or hike. Or even a game of football. Just dress in layers and get outside.

You will be amazed at how good you feel after taking time to spend even a half-hour to an hour outside.

Here are five tips to help stay warm while playing outdoors on winter days:

- Dress in layers. Remember if you get too warm, you can always take a layer off.
- Bring a backpack to store clothes that you may take off when you get too warm.
- Stay dry. Your base layer should keep sweat away from your body, and your outer most layer should be water- and wind-proof.
- Remember your hat, scarf, thick socks and gloves (or mittens).

• Don't forget your boots. Water-proof boots will keep your feet warm and dry in snowy and icy conditions.

Cooperative Extension, FFA have roots in agriculture education

Agriculture has long been considered the backbone of all major civilizations for thousands of years.

A civilized citizenry understands the importance of being able to feed themselves; this is why we made the shift from being hunters and gathers to farmers and ranchers. For centuries the skills and knowledge of farmers was passed down from father to son and mother to daughter – but during the industrial revolution this all changed.

Agriculture education was born and has been a mainstay in educational institutions worldwide.

How did this educational system come about? I believe it is important to know the origins of agriculture education to truly appreciate the value it adds to secondary education. Without the prior legislation this hands-on learning experience known as vocational agriculture would have never existed.

In July 1862, the south was in ruins from the Civil War and the knowledge base has been diminished due to the casualties of the war. Justin Smith Morrill, a representative from Vermont, realizing that in order for the country to prosper in a post-war environment, that agricultural science and engineering must be taught in every state.

The Morrill Land Grant act of 1862 set aside thirty-thousand acres of federal land for each senator and representative in each state. This land was to be sold to raise capital to develop universities in each state to teach agricultural sciences and engineering. This act helped to drive the growth of American agriculture as we know it today. We have heard the term "land grant university" which was born of the Morrill Land Grant Act of 1862.

Following the Morrill Act the country realized the true worth of a university setting for experimentation.

Many land grant universities began to conduct experiments that helped to improve the health and productivity of agricultural commodities such as grains and livestock.

The federal government realized the importance of the experimentation that was occurring at state universities and decided to invest in the development of experiment stations.

This happened through the development of the Hatch Act of 1887.

Each state university was granted $15,000 to put toward the development of experiment stations. This helped to fund the agricultural research farms found at the University of Kentucky. The hatch act became the foundation for the Cooperative Extension Service.

In 1914, the country went one step further with the Smith-Lever

Act, which formally created the Cooperative Extension Service through the land grant universities.

Nearly every county in the state of Kentucky has a Cooperative Extension Office.

Their purpose is to take knowledge gained at the university experiment stations and disseminate that information throughout the state.

Carroll County's Extension Office is located at 500 Floyd Drive and provides many services pertaining to agriculture and natural resources, family and consumer sciences, and youth leadership development through 4-H. If you are looking for some outstanding information about gardening, farming, or home economics you most definitely should check them out.

In 1917, the United States Congress acknowledged the development of classes in public schools that further educated the public about agriculture. This act is known as the Smith Hughes Act of 1917. The act was to prepare people who desired to make a living by farming to learn how to do it.

This was the foundation for agriculture education in public schools. Later in 1928 Henry Groseclose, an agriculture teacher in Virginia, started a club called the Future Farmers of Virginia.

Word got around that this youth organization complimented agriculture education and a national convention was called in Kansas City, Mo. The Future Farmers of America was formally created around the American Royal Livestock Show and students competed in livestock judging at the first convention.

FFA has a long and strong history in Carroll County. From my best estimate the FFA program first started in Carroll County in 1932. There have literally been thousands of students enter the program and left to be successful pillars in the community.

The Carroll County FFA program first started the Carroll County Tobacco Festival more than 50 years ago and it has been a mainstay for Carroll County tourism ever since.

The Carroll County FFA Chapter is attempting to put together a timeline of events for the growth and development of the program.

If you have any information pertaining to the history of the Carroll County FFA Chapter we would love to hear from you.

Submitted by Hazel Lindsey Cutshaw

Hazel Lindsey Cutshaw, now 93, said she was 18 years old during the 1937 Flood. She worked in Carrollton and lived with her aunt on Sycamore Street during the week. Cutshaw said the water almost got up to her aunt's house, but did not flood it. "On Black Sunday, it rained so hard and snowed," she said. She said there was a ravine across from her aunt's house, and she remembers putting a stick in it and watching the water rise. The Monday after Black Sunday, she went with a friend to her friends' sister's house in Owenton and stayed three days until the water went down. Cutshaw's parents, Daisy and Nolan Lindsey, lived in Providence, Ky. "Fatty" Carraco, as he was known in town, took her to her parents' house in his boat. The photo above shows a boat, probably like the one Carraco owned, in the water on Main Street. The photo below shows Howe's Department Store, which was located on Main Street between 4th and Court streets.

Champions

REACH research associate Amanda Kilmer and senior researcher Dr. Ben Murphy presented their findings at the Champions meeting Thursday, Jan. 19. Overall, Kilmer said Champions implemented the majority of activities they had planned. Some were partially implemented, but some of those are meant to be that way because they are laying the groundwork for future projects.

2012 Champions Chair Tracey Reynolds asked how they compare to the other organizations who received DFC grants.

"You've done very, very well for a year one grant," Kilmer said. She said she has seen other counties not even finish the planning stage in year one, let alone start implementing. REACH will complete a grant report after each year, plus a cumulative report after the grant term ends.

The KIP Survey assesses the extent of alcohol, drug and tobacco use among 11 to 18-year-olds in Carroll County. It was administered in October 2010 and is administered every other year in even-numbered years. However, Kilmer said REACH would give the survey in odd-numbered years so that Champions will have the data for the DFC grant.

The current survey measures students' past 30 day use, perception of risk, perception of parental disapproval and age of onset for alcohol, cigarettes and marijuana. While marijuana usage is not an immediate focus for Champions, she said it is required to be included in the survey for the DFC program by the Government Performance and Results Act. However, future surveys will include questions related to prescription drugs, which is a documented problem in Carroll County. (See chart below for results)

In order to help gauge their progress towards their other main goal of increasing community collaboration to prevent and reduce youth substance use, coalition members were invited to participate in an anonymous online survey. It was designed to provide coalition leadership with information regarding how the coalition is functioning and to identify the coalition's strengths and areas that could be improved, according to REACH's report.

Overall, Kilmer said coalition members were confident in the direction the group is heading and communication within the group has improved, especially in the last quarter. The majority (94.1 percent) of respondents believe the agencies involved in the coalition represented a good cross section of those who have a stake in what it is trying to accomplish. However, some indicated they would like to see increased participation from those in business, law enforcement, political, school and religious sectors, according to the report. It was also noted it would be good to recruit representatives from the individual cities within the county and from the Hispanic community.

Just over half (52.9 percent) felt the group had adequate funds to accomplish their goals, and 47.1 percent believe the coalition had adequate people power. Kilmer said some of the activities planned for the year that were not implemented were due to time constraints and the lack of people power. She suggested recruiting more members to the coalition, as well as effectively engaging with the current group members.

She suggested offering training or communicating what needs to be done because some people are more willing to help when they know what is expected.

To help with funding, Kilmer suggested looking for additional grants, especially those outside of the county, so Champions is not competing with other local groups that are fundraising.

Coordinator Matthew Lipe said Champions is currently in the process of applying for smaller grants that could free up DFC money for other projects.

Kilmer also suggested coordinating with a local business or other group that could provide in-kind donations for events.

The next Champions for a Drug Free Carroll County meeting is Feb. 23 at 11:30 a.m. at the Carroll County Public Library.

Wandering

apenty. According to the reporting in the weeks after the flood (News-Democrat), within the first 48 hours of the river beginning to rise, one half the population of Carrollton was homeless. "Three-hundred-twenty-five had no place to lodge; five-hundred-twenty-five had no means of subsistence."

After more than 10 days of steadily rising waters, Black Sunday, Jan. 24, was the worst day as the rumor that the Dix River Dam had failed and waters were rushing downriver toward Carrollton. Though folks experienced panic, most of the lower lying areas had already been evacuated and the rumor turned out to be false.

Before it began to recede, the Ohio had risen 79.9 feet above flood level and the town was almost completely cut off. But in a contemporary article in the local paper, written by Henry Berg Schuerman, Red Cross coordinator for the county, in language we are not accustomed to reading today, wrote that the community had rallied to help everyone through the crisis. "Tho (sic) the cataclysm descended with the rapidity of a falcon and the havoc of a scourge, the emergency was coped with an effective cooperation and a heroic determination by the people of Carrollton which solved that emergency without loss of life, without one person being deprived of food and lodging and without an epidemic of sickness usually consequent upon flood conditions. Verily a record descriptive of the heroic stature of the people of our city."

Within the Local History Room at the public library is a small collection of framed pictures taken in Carrollton during the days of the flood. The Driscoll family gave a wonderful scrapbook to the library that has pages of flood news clippings and photographs (and a wealth of information about General Butler State Resort Park). A couple of years back, Michael Hersey's Junior Historical Society at the middle school gathered oral histories from several residents of Carroll County who had vivid memories of the flood. These wonderful CDs are available for checkout and are even annotated so that you can see what topics are covered on each.

I hope this collection will be a reminder to everyone of how important it might be to share old documents, scrapbooks, pictures, etc. with the library for future generations. While they will be preserved in their current form, the staff can also have them put on microfilm or digitalized. Local history is ongoing.

Jarrett Boyd is the retired director of Carroll County Public Library.

Election

secretary of state records show Crawford, who filed Nov. 21, 2011, is the only candidate to file in this race.

Both Stark and Crawford are seeking re-election to another six-year term of office.

The secretary of state's records show that Rand filed Jan. 19 to seek re-election to the Kentucky House of Representatives. Rand, a Democrat from Bedford, is the only candidate that has filed in this race.

In the race for the White House, only one Republican contender has filed the paperwork to be on Kentucky's ballot. Former Mass. Gov. Mitt Romney is the only candidate to file paperwork, qualifying on Jan. 17 for the May 22 primary election, according to the secretary of state's website.

Marsh said candidates seeking office must file a notification form, declaration and appointment of campaign treasurer.

Race Fest

from TKays Blues and More, while a Kentucky Kruizers car show was held in front of the Carroll County Public Library. Booths lined the courthouse lawn and two bands performed. Welch said she intends on having something going on at the east end of Main Street in front of Down on Main as well.

John Cox, owner of TKays, said he had 20 entries in the motorcycle contest, and a lot of locals showed up and stayed down there until the contest was over. He said motorcyclists like to spend money and come to events like the Race Fest, and he thinks he could get them to come from all over the state. "It was a great success, one of our best sales days," he said.

Welch said people also liked being able to drink alcohol in designated cups as they walked. She said she talked to Carrollton Police Chief Mike Willhoite afterward, and he said the police did not have any issues with attendees. She said people also enjoyed having the Hwy. 227 businesses set up downtown because it was out of the ordinary.

Welch said she would like to see a race car downtown to help bring more people to the area because children swarmed the cars set up outside Kroger and Walmart.

Royse said he is working on an insurance claimer to get a simulator downtown for this year's event. Kroger had a Mountain Dew simulator and the children loved it, but it is a huge liability.

Walmart manager Lisa Brown said Carrollton is now the NASCAR store in Kentucky and that she will have specifics relating to what Walmart can do for Race Fest much earlier than last year. She said she may be able to get a simulator, car or a mascot such as Chester Cheeto downtown.

Avid NASCAR fan Jimmy Supplee said Carrollton needs race car drivers downtown. Kentucky Speedway Marketing Manager Jesse Harris said the drivers do whatever sponsors tell them to do. However once the Daytona 500 runs, kicking off the NASCAR season on Feb. 26, things get crazy with the sponsors. Kentucky is important to us, but to them, it's just another weekend, Harris said.

Supplee suggested talking to Michael Waltrip Racing about bringing a driver because Waltrip is from Kentucky. Harris suggested talking to the local NAPA store, whose team races for Waltrip.

Supplee said Carrollton's Doug Elsbury hauled cars for eight years and has connections in the industry. Elsbury could not make it to that meeting because of a work conflict, but Supplee said he would start attending next time.

Royse asked if anyone had any business after the NASCAR Quaker State 400 race. KFC manager Suzanne Mason said they stayed open until 4 a.m. and had a full dining room at 1 a.m. Royse said Kroger had a good week and that it was "a zoo" in the store at 5 p.m. the day after the race.

Harris said the Kentucky Speedway will do more promotion of the local events this year.

Welch said the first time she travels somewhere new, she tends to stay close to where she is staying, but ventures further out as she becomes more familiar with the area. She said she believes this also will hold true for race fans visiting the area.

Cox said Race Fest should be a celebration of the local community and more locals also will come to the event if it is well-promoted and is held year after year.

Mason said her sister works for a marketing firm and has the Churchill Downs account. She said her sister helps with the local advertising, including billboards and posters, for the racetrack, and she would talk to her about possibly helping advertise for the Race Fest.

Carrollton Main Street Manager Sam Burgess pointed out that Race Fest is going to take money, and last year the committee pulled off a miracle to host the event. He said they spent $2,000 last year and then received a $3,400 grant from Walmart soon before the event. Brown said Walmart will apply for the grant again through the Carroll County Fair Board, which has a 501c3 designation, with the intent to use the money on Race Fest. The local branch also received a Volunteerism Always Pays grant for $500 last year, which was used for the beautification project near I-71, and that Carroll County should receive that money again this year.

Burgess suggested putting in a request for inclusion into the 2012-13 fiscal year budgets for the Carrollton City Council and Carroll County Fiscal Court.

Welch said she believes the government agencies begin talking about the following fiscal year's budgets in March and they are finalized in April. Smith asked Chamber of Commerce administrative assistant Bret Calhoun to put together a preliminary budget based off of last year's numbers. Welch also suggested getting businesses to co-sponsor particular events downtown during Race Fest. Smith said he sees that as more of an investment by the businesses into downtown rather than an expense.

Royse said the committee did a great job collecting items to be given away for free last year, but no one knew about it beforehand. This year, they could include this in their advertising to help bring more people to the event. "Let's face it, those types of things bring people down," he said.

The next Race Fest committee meeting will be held on Feb. 15 at noon at Down on Main.

SO investigating arson case at CCo Animal Shelter

The Carroll County Sheriff's Office is investigating an attempted arson at the Carroll County Animal Shelter, according to a news release from the sheriff's office.

Deputy Daniel Rose was called to the animal shelter at 9:34 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 22. Animal Warden Leonard Danner went to the facility on Dean's Ferry Road and discovered what appeared to be smoke coming from the electrical panel in the storage area. He called the Carroll County Dispatch. The fire was actually a small pile of debris on the floor, but the smoke did appear to be coming from the electrical box, Deputy Rose said.

A member of the Ghent Fire Protection District arrived on the scene first and put water on the fire so it was extinguished quickly, the sheriff's office reported. Rose said the person or people responsible had attempted to make the fire appear electrical in nature. He noted that some other items were moved and the monitor for the surveillance system was taken.

An electrician had been working at the building on Friday, Jan. 20. He confirmed that the storage area was clean on Friday and also checked the electrical panel to determine the source of the fire. Deputy Rose said there were no signs that it was electrical in nature and opened an arson investigation, according to the news release.

Anyone with information on the matter is asked to contact the Sheriff's Office at (502) 732-7010 or make an anonymous tip via the website at www.carroll-countykysheriff.com.

Pair arrested when found passed out

A Carroll County deputy sheriff transporting two people to jail came upon a driver and passenger who were apparently intoxicated at about 2 a.m. on Sunday, Jan. 22. A Carrollton Police Department unit was called to assist because the deputy's vehicle would not hold all of the people who needed transport to jail, according to a news release from the sheriff's office.

Deputy J.T. Shaw was on his way to the Carroll County Detention Center with two suspects when he stopped at the intersection of Fifth Street and Highland Avenue for a traffic light.

A red truck at the front of the line of vehicles at the light never moved after the light turned green. Shaw activated his emergency lights and got out to talk to the driver, who he discovered was slumped over the steering wheel. The passenger was also passed out, according to the news release.

"When I approached the driver's door, the female subject was passed (out) with the truck in gear, her foot on brake and the truck was running," Shaw said. "I tapped on the glass and the female jumped and took (her) foot off brake."

The truck began rolling forward and Shaw was unable to open the door because it was locked, but he yelled at the woman to put the vehicle in park and she did, according to the sheriff's office.

The driver, Jennifer E. Valentine, 41, 3555 Bates Lane, Smithfield, Ky., is handicapped and was unable to perform field sobriety tests, according to the sheriff's office.

Valentine admitted to taking multiple prescription pills. She was taken to Carroll County Memorial Hospital for a blood test.

At the hospital, Valentine allowed Deputy Shaw to search her purse. He allegedly found a prescription pill bottle with the label torn off and six pills inside that were identified as OxyContin, according to the news release.

She was charged with driving under the influence, failure of non-owner to produce insurance, possession of a controlled substance not in the proper container and possession of controlled substance first degree first offense.

The passenger, Tony D. Brown, 50, 3381 Franklinton Road, Pleasureville, Ky. was the owner of the truck. He was charged with alcohol intoxication.

A Carrollton man was charged this week with allegedly stealing a debit/credit card belonging to his grandparents and making thousands of dollars in purchases.

James Dalton Walker, 18, 1587 Hwy. 36 East, Carrollton, was charged with forgery second degree, theft by unlawful taking over $500 and criminal possession of a forged instrument second degree, all felony offenses, according to a news release from the Carroll County

Walker

Sheriff's Office. Deputy J.T. Shaw arrested him just hours after the initial alleged crime was reported.

Gary and Emileeta Johnson contacted the Carroll County Dispatch at 9:04 p.m. to report their Visa debit/credit card had been stolen. The couple reside at 323 Grobmeyer Ave., Carrollton.

Deputy Shaw said the couple suspected their grandson took the card because he allegedly had a drug problem and told Shaw they wanted to get their grandson some help for his addiction, according to the news release.

Walker was located at 821 Seventh Street, Carrollton. Shaw said the young man was at the residence with some friends.

"He agreed to come with me," Shaw said. "He cooperated and totally confessed to stealing the credit card."

The card was used in Carrollton, La Grange, Boone County and several other locations. Walker purchased gas, food, prepaid time for his cell phone and got cash from the card, the sheriff's office reports. Shaw said Walker signed his grandfather's name on the purchases.

Walker was lodged in the Carroll County Detention Center on a $5,000 cash bond.

Henry native survives cruise nightmare

By PHYLLIS McLAUGHLIN
Special to The Henry County Local

Henry County native Joe Ryan, 23, is looking forward to a trip to Destin, Fla., with friends later this year, after he graduates from Eastern Kentucky University.

It will be a landlocked location - "No captain needed for time on the beach," he said during a phone interview Monday.

Seems mundane, but Ryan is ready for mundane.

He and his lifelong best friend, Jordan Powell, also 23 and a Henry County native, both were aboard the Costa Concordia when it ran aground off the coast of Italy Friday, Jan. 13. That was his first trip overseas - and may be the last time he ever boards a cruise ship.

The Mediterranean cruise was an early graduation present from his parents, Larry and Jean Ryan of Pleasureville, and started with a great day of sight-seeing in Rome, Ryan said.

The next day, "we woke up early to board," he said.

Powell recalls boarding at 2:30 p.m. "We unpacked and explored the ship," she said.

At 9 p.m., the group was seated at dinner. They sat with another group of Americans, including a family of three.

"We had one bite of our appetizer, and the floor rumbled," Ryan recalled.

The group turned to look at Powell, who is an experienced traveler and had been on cruises before.

"She said they might be running the engines harder" as the ship built up momentum for the cruise. "Then we heard the dishes breaking and felt the ship start listing. We got up and ran."

As has been reported by the international media, cruisers had not yet been through any drills to prepare them for an emergency, Ryan said. "I've never been on a cruise ship before, and I had no long-term thought of what to do."

He and another friend, Lauren Moore of Bowling Green, were separated from Powell and the rest of their party. He said their first instinct was return to their cabins. "It was the only place we knew that they would know where to meet us."

For about an hour and a half, the pair went back and forth between the cabins, hoping to find their friends.

"We waited and waited for directions" from the captain and the crew over the public address system, he said. They had only two messages - one from a crew member advising passengers that the problem they were having was an electrical issue, he recalled. The second, and last, announcement they heard was to tell passengers there was a problem with a generator.

Quickly, he said, "it sunk in that it was serious," he said.

Ryan said he and Moore went back to their cabins one last time to get their wallets and cell phones - and life jackets.

They then headed for the life boats. The first set of lifeboats they found was surrounded by frightened people desperate to get off the ship, he said. "It was the scariest thing I've ever seen. People were running and screaming to get to the boats. It was lawlessness and chaos."

A woman calmly told them of another area of the ship where there were more lifeboats that still had space on them, and they made their way, finally getting aboard one.

The lifeboats were three tiers of panicking people, he said. Crew members used poles to push away people who were pushing to get aboard, some of them even trying to dive onto them.

"I turned to Lauren and said, 'You know what happens in this part of the movie, don't you,'" referring to the scene in "Titanic" where a ship's officer pulls a gun and shoots a man who isn't following orders and putting everyone in peril. "We were waiting for gunshots."

Making matters worse, the winch used to lower the lifeboat failed and two crew members were forced to lower it manually, doing their best to keep it level and trying to keep it from slamming against the side of the ship.

Ryan said he was thankful the motor on the boat worked, as the current was so strong, maneuvering with oars would have been nearly impossible.

Twenty minutes later, he said, they were on shore on a nearby island. "We assumed all of our worries and fears were over. We learned very quickly that was not the case."

Meanwhile, Powell, who knew exactly what to do in such an emergency, and the rest of her group made their way directly to the lifeboats. At one point while the ship listed, they were looking up at the sky. "Then we were looking straight down at the water," she said.

She recalled that nearly an hour and a half passed before the crew sounded the alarm to abandon ship.

"The crew was not cooperative or helpful," and were even trying to round up passengers into a theater. "We ignored them and stayed where the lifeboats were."

Her group boarded one of the first lifeboats to leave the ship.

Once on the island, they waited by the shore to watch for Ryan and Moore.

"Jordan and our friends were waiting for us, which I'm sure had to be nerve-racking," Ryan said. They met up with the rest of the Americans who had been on board - 126 all together.

"It was so comforting to meet up with other Americans on the island," he said. Immediately, the group felt a sense of camaraderie. "We became family, and we made sure everyone was there at every stop until we got to the embassy."

They spent the night in the church, which Ryan said was made of marble and was very cold as the overnight temperature dipped to 40 degrees.

"All we had to eat was cheese puffs, water and chocolate," Powell said.

In the morning, the group took a ferry to Tuscany, where a relief station had been set up offering the survivors blankets, hot tea, bread and other comfort items, she said. A taxi took them to the American embassy back in Rome, where they were able to get emergency passports and arrange for travel home.

Officials kept promising the travelers that their passports would be waiting for them, but they never did get them back, Ryan said.

The group took turns using the two cell phones, but rationing what little time they had in battery life. Back at home, family and friends set up "phone trees" so that news could be passed along after each brief phone call.

With only the clothes on their backs and little or no sleep since the night before they boarded the ship, the group was finally on their way home, arriving back in Louisville about 11 p.m. Sunday.

And that was good enough for Joyce Powell, Jordan's mom, who said they got a phone call from Jordan about 6:30 a.m. Saturday telling them what happened and that they were all right - before the news broke on television.

Speaking from her Eminence home Sunday, Joyce said her daughter's quick actions got her home safely. "It's just a blessing."

Ryan said as far as he knows, only one American he met on the ship, a young man about his own age, was unaccounted for. He still doesn't know if the man made it off the ship.

Of the captain's excuse for not being aboard his sinking ship - having slipped and fallen into a lifeboat and then unable to get back - Ryan isn't buying it. "He's a coward."

He said officials from the parent company, Carnival, are working to reimburse travelers their money and also for their lost items, which including cameras and electronics, totaled over $10,000 for the group, he estimated.

But for now, he said, he is happy and "trying to get back to normal - a new normal," finishing school and looking forward to those sandy - and safe - Florida beaches.

Smoke detectors save lives

Carrollton Fire Department
Fire Prevention Office

Smoke detectors save lives, but only if they are used and maintained!. Every home should have at least one smoke detector. However, it is ideal to have a smoke detector on each level of your home and one in each of your sleeping rooms. If your budget doesn't allow it, put at least one of them in the area of all your sleeping rooms. If your smoke detector uses 9 volt batteries, replace the batteries every six months. It's easier to remember this if you replace your batteries when the time falls back and springs forward. If you don't think you might forget to change your batteries on a regular cycle you might want to spend a little more and invest in a detector with a 10-year lithium battery. At the end of 10 years, simply discard the detector. All smoke detectors, regardless of type, make, or model, should be replaced after 10 years of use.

If you are doing extensive remodeling in your home, you should install a hardwired smoke detector that utilizes your home's electricity and only depends on a 9 volt battery if the electricity goes out.

You will still need to remember to change the batteries because the 9 volt will eventually lose its charge. If you install more than one hardwired detector, ensure that the detectors are linked and they all sound at once. If a detector sounds, such as in the basement and you are on the second floor, you will know sooner that something is wrong and you need to get out.

Battery operated detectors are now able to do this using wireless technology. It might be something worth looking into.

Remember, if your detector sounds, treat it as an emergency and get out, stay out, and call the fire department! We will be more than happy to come out and check your home as well as check to see if your detector is malfunctioning. You can contact the Carrollton Fire Department at 732-7041 or, for emergencies only, 911.

Prevention:

- Install a detector on each level of your home and in each sleeping room
- Change the batteries when the time changes – fall back and spring forward
- Detectors with a 10 year lithium are a good option – discard after 10 years
- Regardless, install a new detector every 10 years
- If the detector sounds, treat it as an emergency and call 911.

Hornback

Carroll and Henry, I'm sorry to lose you."

Hornback said Monday he is "looking forward to serving the people of my new counties."

As a full-time farmer in Shelby, living just 3 miles from the Henry County line and raising corn, soybeans, tobacco, and cattle, Hornback, who is in his first term in the senate, said he already knows a lot of people in Henry and has met many from Carroll and Gallatin.

"I feel I'll be well-connected with the people over there," he said, adding that he is familiar with the issues important to each county and plans to talk with the school superintendents, county judge-executives and other community leaders throughout the district.

"Everybody knows the budget is going to be tight. My No. 1 priority is no cuts in school funding. ... It's a slim year, but we will do what we can do," he said.

Hornback said he campaigned in 2010 on the premise that the state should spend responsibly, "like we do with our personal finances."

House seat

State Rep. Rick Rand, D-Bedford, retains most of the same counties in his 47th District, which previously encompassed a portion of Oldham County, along with Henry, Trimble and Carroll counties. He loses Oldham, but gains Gallatin County and a portion of Boone that includes about 2,000 constituents.

The state is divided into 100 districts for the House of Representatives, which means each district must contain 43,000 constituents – plus or minus 5 percent, as with the Senate.

"Gallatin is new to me," Rand said, adding that Kentucky Speedway is an example of one of the new issues he'll be more involved with. Last year's inaugural Sprint Cup race turned into a fiasco for thousands of NASCAR fans who were unable to get to the track because of traffic backed up for miles along I-75 and local access roads.

"I have to go up and get to know the people and the issues," he said. "But [redistricting means] you pick up new constituents and lose old constituents that you felt comfortable with. ... I think the issues for county governments and school districts [in the new counties] are very similar."

Though Beshear and other Democrats were displeased with the Senate's redistricting, which shifted Democratic Sen. Kathy Stein's district out of Lexington and Republican Sen. Dorsey Ridley's district into Lexington, the governor signed the bill into law.

"Redistricting is always a partisan process, and the current situation is no exception," he stated in a news release, adding that "the action directed by the Senate President [David Williams] ... goes beyond partisanship. It reflects a personal vindictiveness that should have no place in this process."

Beshear said he signed the bill because the deadline to file in the 2012 election for House and Senate seats is Jan. 31, and he wanted "all citizens interested in filing for any of these seats will know what House or Senate district they are in and have time to get their filing papers in order."

Beshear said he believes before the 2020 census comes around, Kentucky should institute a nonpartisan, citizen-based group to participate in the redistricting process.

Board learns nutrition facts about county school district

SHARON GRAVES
The News-Democrat

Cake and punch is a great way to start a new year and the Carroll County Board of Education did just that. January is the month for honoring boards of education and Superintendent Lisa James honored the board with cake, punch and certificates.

The board also began the new year with a new leader. Mona Kindoll was elected as the new board chairman at the Jan. 5 meeting.

Patti Burgess, food service director held her audience captive and in stitches as she gave her annual food service report. Burgess is dedicated to following all state and federal guidelines ensuring that students get the required daily amount of vitamins, minerals and laughter. Having been in food service with Carroll County for more than 16 years, Burgess bubbled with enthusiasm for her job and the students of the district.

According to a nutrient analysis Burgess presented to the board, the students at Carroll County in grades four-12 are practically on target for the amount of calories taken in while receiving higher than the target in iron, calcium, vitamins A and C and protein. The total fat and saturated fat intake is lower than the targets provided. Burgess also explained to the board they were serving more whole grains and watching the sodium intake as well.

Burgess explained that she is able to order in Papa John's pizza once a week for students and "they love it," she said. "Papa John's meets all state and federal nutritional guidelines and kids eat more and parents come in and eat also."

Carroll County serves 214,902 lunches, 109,646 breakfasts and 6,575 after school snacks during a year with the average daily participation being 1,242 students. The school is reimbursed for over $730,000 from the federal nutrition programs. Students are charged $2 per full-priced lunch, and $.40 for a reduced priced lunch. According to Burgess' report, there are 1,118 students who qualify for free lunches and 133 who qualify for reduced priced lunches.

Jon Conrad, chief financial officer, gave his regular report and prepared the board to possibly receive less funding in the future. He explained that one grant is due to expire June 30, 2012, that pays for four teachers and most of the substitute teachers.

Superintendent Lisa James said in her report, that Gov. Steve Beshear is trying not to cut the SEEK funding, that schools receive based on pupil population and participation, but the allotment is going back to 2008 rates. She also explained the state grants will be cut by 4.5 percent and Kentucky Education Technology System will also have a shortfall.

The administration and the board are in the beginning stages of preparing a budget for the upcoming year and all of these issues will need to be addressed.

James also explained that President Obama is "ratcheting up benchmarks for Head Start and early childhood education," that will require training in Atlanta, Ga.

James recognized Larry Tarvestad and Jebron Hardesty from Dow Corning for their long term commitment to financially supporting the school and its programs and through such projects as mentoring, recycling and its co-op program. James gave high praise for Dow Corning being a Champion for Kids.

FISCAL COURT BRIEFS

Fiscal court agrees to purchase vehicle for county coroner

Carroll County Fiscal Court Tuesday agreed to seek bids on a new vehicle for Carroll County Coroner David Wilhoite.

District 1 Magistrate Floyd Bowling made a motion, seconded by Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson, to buy the vehicle off state contract.

District 2 Magistrate Deanie Miller said he doesn't understand why the county would want to go off state contract.

"I'd rather buy local," he said.

Magistrates agreed to seek bids from local dealers. Wilhoite said he would work up specifications to send to the dealerships.

District 3 Magistrate Mark Bates said he expects the county should get many years of service from it, noting that the coroner reported 2,800 miles for the service he provided last year.

Once the proposals are received, Tomlinson said the county can review bids and also consider the state contract prices to determine what to purchase for the coroner's office.

Couple seeks help with creek flooding

Patsy and Floyd Smith, of 176 Vance Road near English, came to Carroll County Fiscal Court Tuesday seeking its help with flooding issues they experience along Lee Creek.

Patsy Smith said the creek has filled in and is no longer as deep as it used to be. She said that the opening under the bridge near her home has also filled in over time.

In the past, they were able to drive a dozer under it. Today, the opening for water is so small that she can't walk through it.

Last year, the couple said the water was 3 feet over the road, with water up in their yard. Already this year, rain has pushed the water up to the top of the bank on the creek.

"Every time it comes up, it takes a little more away with it," Patsy Smith said.

Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson said a fiscal court is seeking federal approval to clear more creek beds. He said this is one of several places that he hopes the county can again get federal assistance to reduce potential flooding in the county.

The Smiths provided photos that Tomlinson copied to aid his effort to get funding for the project.

Overtime

ballgame after three quarters. Trimble is a middle of the pack team in the region, they're not in the upper echelon, but still, Kerrie does a great job with them and we maybe caught them on a bad night is what I'm thinking too."

Carroll took the lead on a 3-pointer in the right corner by Kindoll with 3:40 remaining, 31-30. Kindoll led the Lady Panthers in scoring with 12.

Trimble answered with a 3-point play by junior Chloe Griffith and regained the lead. Coming out of a timeout, the Lady Panthers were patient and worked the ball around the horn, finding an open Andie Hardesty near the basket. The senior hit the shot, was fouled and hit the free throw, 34-33 Carroll.

Carroll's strength in the game was that ability to take their time in their offensive sets and find a good shot. That patience frustrated Trimble. "Their flex offense hurt us," Stewart said. "We gave up too many easy shots right under the basket, just not being in position to take that pass away."

Missed free throws and turnovers also played a huge role in the game. While Trimble had the opportunity to win the game with .2 seconds left, Carroll could have put the game away before then had they hit their free throws. The Lady Raiders were whistled for 20 fouls, compared to 10 by the Lady Panthers. However, Carroll shot just 8-26 from the charity stripe, while Trimble was 5-12.

Trimble turned the ball over 24 times, which was a contributing factor in losing their two-digit lead. "We just didn't put it away," Stewart said. "We'd turn the ball over or didn't get a good look at the basket that we wanted, and they would come down and be very patient in their offense until they got something really easy underneath and they just slowly but surely chipped away at that lead and put themselves into position to win."

Carroll committed 16 turnovers, well below their season average. Mefford said before the game, he wrote 15 or under on the board in the locker room, emphasizing the importance of cutting down on their mistakes.

With the loss, Trimble extended their losing streak to four. The Lady Raiders have been struggling offensively of late, posting three of their four lowest points totals for the season. Stewart said they have been working a lot on shooting in practice and making sure the right people are getting the ball in their hands. "I don't have the explanation of why the ball's not going in the basket," she said. "Our timing and things, we're just out of rhythm right now."

On the flip side, the win ends Carroll's three-game losing streak. "We're just tickled to get a win," Mefford said. "We're 4-13 going into this, so any time

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of the governmental activities, the business-type activities, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of City of Carrollton, Kentucky, as of and for the year ended June 30, 2011, which collectively comprise the City's basic financial statements as listed in the table of contents. These financial statements are the responsibility of City of Carrollton, Kentucky's management. Our responsibility is to express opinions on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America and the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and the significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinions.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the respective financial position of the governmental activities, the business-type activities, each major fund, and the aggregate remaining fund information of the City of Carrollton, Kentucky, as of June 30, 2011, and the respective changes in financial position and cash flows, where applicable, thereof for the year then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated January 5, 2012, on our consideration of the City of Carrollton, Kentucky's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts, and grant agreements and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America require that the management's discussion and analysis and budgetary comparison information on pages 3 through 10 and 51 through 52 be presented to supplement the basic financial statements. Such information, although not a part of the basic financial statements, is required by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board, who considers it to be an essential part of financial reporting for placing the basic financial statements in an appropriate operational, economic, or historical context. We have applied certain limited procedures to the required supplementary information in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, which consisted of inquiries of management about the methods of preparing the information and comparing the information for consistency with management's responses to our inquiries, the basic financial statements, and other knowledge we obtained during our audit of the basic financial statements. We do not express an opinion or provide any assurance on the information because the limited procedures do not provide us with sufficient evidence to express an opinion or provide any assurance.

A copy of the complete auditor's report, including financial statements and supplemental information, are on file at City Hall, 750 Clay Street, and are available for public inspection during normal business hours. Any citizen may obtain a copy of the complete auditor's report for a duplication cost not to exceed twenty-five cents ($0.25) per page.

A copy of the audit is on the city's website at www.carrolltonky.net. Copies of the financial statement prepared in accordance with KRS 424.220 are available at no cost at the City Treasurer Office, 750 Clay Street, Carrollton, Kentucky.

Cash for Jewelry, Coins & Currency Roadshow

Spends Money with Local Residents This Week Only Carrollton Area.
Attendance has been Great.

By Sally Ferguson
Staff Writer

The Roadshow has had an enjoyable visit. Several visitors have cashed some unwanted attic finds for serious money. One local resident brought in some old currency from before 1900 and left with over $5,000. The family had handed down the bills, and some were in pretty good shape. Most visitors know that gold and silver coins are valuable regardless of their age. But Ben and Julie were really surprised when they brought a giant piggy bank in full of what they thought were common coins. Along with a dresser drawer full of costume jewelry and bag of non-running watches, Julie pocketed $1,843 dollars cash.

Gold has reached world record prices and silver markets have toppled the 30 year charts.

The recent record prices have been associated with wealthy investors buying gold and silver, commodities trying to avoid the weak US dollar, and a slow recovering economy. There is no better time than now for you to gather up some of that broken jewelry and other precious metals. Starting at 10 am on today, the Cash for Jewelry, Coins & Currency Roadshow is setting up a convenient location. During the 4 day stay, local residents can bring in any costume jewelry, gold and silver jewelry, coins & older US Currency and turn them in for cash on the spot. Just about everybody has some amount of gold or silver just lying around. The staff will help sort costume jewelry, broken items and coins. Just bring it all. Do not leave the box of costume at home. Let the experts take a look. This week anybody can sell them direct to the collectors. They are here to spend cash, and shop for the enthusiastic collectors.

The Cash Roadshow visits cities around the country hosting 4 day events allowing the general public to take advantage of convenient locations. The response has been tremendous. The public who comes to the "cash it in" event are so pleased that they make another visit. The word of mouth travels fast between relatives and friends and neighbors. Local residents have been known to bring everything from small coin collections, large note currency in stacks, to large bags of old jewelry and watches that need sorted. Times are such that even the most secure family could use some extra spending cash. As the economy recovers these record prices are expected to go back down making this an important time to act now. If you have older United States currency and coins, it might be time to cash in. will be purchasing all types of old currency, silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free.

Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort, so bring everything. The quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors, the grade being higher makes the currency & coin worth more money. With the current gold and silver market, high prices are being paid for older coins too. Any dollar, half, quarter and dime coins minted in the US are more desirable. These automatically qualify if they are 1965 or older; halves need to be 1970 or older. Collectors warn, please do not try to clean or paint anything. This will decrease their value.
